Our long-term partnerships are the cornerstone of our success, and our collaboration with Timrite, a Gauteng-based company, is a prime example of what can be achieved through mutual support and shared goals.

Established in 1995, Timrite has been a trusted partner for 28 years, supplying essential underground mine support solutions, including engineered timber products, steel supports, and electronic components.

"Our partnership with Harmony has been a tremendous journey. Over the years, we've been able to grow and now supply nearly all the timber products Harmony requires, thanks to the mutual trust and collaboration," says Sandile Mkondele, Business Development Manager at Timrite.

Beyond their expertise in mining support solutions, Timrite is deeply committed to environmental sustainability and community development. The company is passionate about nurturing young entrepreneurs and fostering local talent through skills development initiatives.

Over the past two years;

Timrite has awarded 69 bursaries

Invested over R3 million in education

Spent an additional R2 million on learnerships and apprenticeships for unemployed locals

Translated their business success into meaningful benefits in their surrounding community

"Our ambition is to continue innovating and developing products that minimise risks and helps Harmony achieve its goal of achieving Zero Harm," Sandile adds.

This partnership has also made a significant impact in the communities where Timrite operates. Hlengiwe, HR Executive at the company, emphasises the importance of making a difference: "It's critical for us to have a lasting impact on the community. Our recent projects with Harmony, such as providing computers to local libraries is just one example of how we aim to give back."

"We're incredibly grateful to Harmony for supporting us not just on a commercial level, but by joining hands with us in empowering the community. Our 28-year partnership has not only strengthened our business but also supported the livelihoods of our staff and the communities we serve," reflects Sandile.

Harmony is proud to work with partners like Timrite, who share our values and dedication to safety, innovation, and community upliftment. Together, we are building a safer, more sustainable future for our industry and the communities that support it.
